DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3, 5-8 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ramspeck et al.

Ramspeck et al. show a nozzle for dispensing liquid on a moving substrate with a swirled pattern comprising:

- a nozzle body having a first and a second side, the first side adapted for coupling to a dispenser body and including a liquid inlet and an air inlet 28 (see Figure 3 enclosed herein);
- a recess formed in the second side of the nozzle body (see Figure 3 attached herein);
- a surface 44 on the second side of the nozzle body extending from within the recess;
- a liquid discharge passage extending through the recess and having a central axis and a radius extending from the central axis, the liquid discharge passage communicating with the liquid inlet and having a liquid discharge outlet proximate the surface (see Figure 3 attached herein); and

Art Unit: 3752

- a plurality of air discharge passages 50 in the nozzle body, the passages 50 communicating with the air inlet and opening into the recess adjacent the surface, the passages 50 being angled in a direction generally toward the liquid discharge outlet and offset from the central axis by a distance about equal to the radius of the liquid discharge passage (see Figure 3 attached herein).

The device of Ramspeck et al. is capable of dispensing multiple liquid filaments since the device comprises all of the structural limitations of the instant invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ramspeck et al.

The plurality of air discharge passages having respective air discharge outlets being positioned in a generally square pattern about the liquid discharge outlet would have been a matter of design choice since such a modification involves a mere placement of known components, which is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art because the air will still cause the liquid to form a swirling pattern.

Conclusion

Art Unit: 3752

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The patents to Allen et al. and Sprague are pertinent to Applicant's invention.
